Port buys 'option' on Stone Lock District land

The Stone Lock District is rendered as the color portion of this image, taken from the city's website centered on the project. The image is taken looking northwest, with the Sacramento River running in the foreground. The district's acreage includes frontage along both the river and the barge canal (connected to the river above). The Port of West Sacramento used to own some of this property and now has an "option" to buy it again. The port is out of view at the far side of the image. (from the City of West Sacramento)

The West Sacramento City Council last week evidently decided that discretion was the better part of valor. The council opted not to sign a hasty deal with the Cordish Companies, and instead chose to sell the Port of West Sacramento an "option to buy" 215 publicly-owned waterfront acres known as the Stone Lock District.

The port is an independent agency – but one that is controlled by appointees mostly from the City of West Sacramento.

"We didn't want to rush into any bad land decisions," Mayor Christopher Cabaldon told the News-Ledger. "We were working quickly on the Cordish deal, and couldn't cross all the 'T's' and dot all the 'I's' to ensure that we met all of Cordish's needs as well as our own."

In return for $500 up front and $75,000 annually for seven years (with possible extensions), the port gets the right to buy pieces of the land from the city redevelopment agency at its future appraised value. It also could transfer its rights to Cordish or another developer.

The goal remains the same: to eventually convey the land to Cordish for mixed-use development such as a marina, restaurants, hotels, homes and offices.

"The port district still can reach an agreement with Cordish," said Cabaldon.

The port/city deal requires that if the port transfers its rights to the land to Cordish, there must be a development agreement with the city in place. So a future developer would have to have its plan approved and negotiated with the city in order to proceed.

The City of West Sacramento controls most of the seats on the port commission – but what happens if the two parties just can't agree on what to do next with the property?

"If our interests aren't aligned, the only thing that could happen is the land doesn't get developed," said Cabaldon.

The city was motivated to make some kind of quick deal with the property because the land belongs to the city's redevelopment agency, and Governor Brown's budget plan threatens to abolish such agencies. As it stands, Brown's tentative plan calls for land owned by a redevelopment agency – including the Stone Lock District property and about 100 other acres in West Sacramento alone – to be liquidated if that does happen.

By locking the property up in a real estate transaction, the West Sacramento City Council hopes to avoid such a forced "fire sale" and preserve control over the future of this waterfront land.

"The deadline (from the state) is a moving target," said Cabaldon. "We can't get caught with our pants down, and we don't know when that could happen."

Silva family: part of West Sac's rich agricultural history

Ed Silva is 80 years old now and is a lifelong resident of West Sacramento. He is soft-spoken and easy to like and if you can drag him away from his still very busy life for a few minutes, he has some wonderful stories to tell about West Sacramento's agricultural past. He was raised on a family dairy farm only a stone's throw away from where he now lives on Deerwood Street, land that was developed and paved over many years ago to make way for the Port of Sacramento and the many homes all around Park Boulevard. And although most of the current residents of West Sacramento know very little about their city's agricultural past, Ed remembers it well.

"My dad, Manuel Silva, came here way back in 1914, from a little village on San Miguel Island, which is in the Portuguese Archipelago of the Azores," recalled Ed, "and like most immigrants back in those days, he was trying to escape poverty and make a better life for himself. Once here, he moved around quite a bit and worked on ranches in Auburn, Natomas and Dixon before finally ending up in West Sacramento around 1932."

When Ed was only a month old, the growing Silva family rented a dairy from what was then known as Caledonia Farms, located near what is now the Nor-Cal Beverage Company and Parkstone Center, the large medical building which anchors the southern end of Park Boulevard.

"Back then," explained Ed, "there was no Jefferson Boulevard where it is today. In fact, the Jefferson Boulevard of my youth was where Park Boulevard is nowadays. Anyway, around 1937 my dad bought about 50 nearby acres of his own, which included a dairy of about 90 cows, all of whom had to be milked twice a day by hand until milking machines became available. Our milk was some of the best around and was delivered fresh to Crystal Creamery every day in big ten gallon cans."

Ed went on to explain that when he was young, much of West Sacramento was nothing more than grass for cows to graze upon.

"From what is now Stone Boulevard to 19th Street to Virginia Street was all cow pasture," recalled Ed, "as was most of the land from across Park Boulevard all the way west to West Acres School. And many was the time that we would get a call from the school wanting us to get right over there because some of our cows had busted down a fence and ended up in the school yard. And mending fences was just one of my many chores. I learned how to drive a tractor at an early age and like many of the teenagers back then, I was pretty good at bailing hay. And believe me, there was always plenty of work to do on the farm, for both the boys and the girls, and there were lots of times when my dad would meet me at the school bus to get me started as soon as possible on a good afternoon of work."

Over the years, two wives would give Manuel Silva six children, four sons and two daughters, of which Ed was the youngest, and as they got older, all the boys were taken into the family business as full partners. They also all served their country during times of war and also inherited their father's strong work ethic.

What do you do when you can't sleep?

Like most people, I have nights when no matter how long my day has been, and no matter how tired I am, I simply cannot get to sleep. When I was younger, I would just turn on some soft music, or even drink a glass of warm milk, and that would usually do the trick. But as I've gotten older, I've found that I don't really need as much sleep as I once did, and I just have to accept the fact that there are going to be nights when no matter what I do, my body is simply going to take its own sweet time falling asleep. And for quite awhile now, on nights like that, I have turned to Turner Classic Movies to keep me company. I mean, if you are going to be up past midnight anyway, why not share that time with Humphrey Bogart or James Cagney or Jean Harlow or even a young Elizabeth Taylor? Plus some of those old black and white film noir movies of the 40s and 50s are so wonderfully written and acted that it's almost time well-spent to be wide awake at 2 a.m.

The real problem with staying up late at night and watching a bunch of old movies is that sooner or later, you've seen them all — often more than once — and you start to know what Cary Grant and John Wayne are going to say before the words are even out of their mouths. And this can lead to a kind of early-morning boredom that makes possible something I once considered unthinkable — watching infomercials.

Now, for those of you who are not up-to-speed on infomercials, they are those half-hour "paid programming" shows that usually flood the television airwaves from approximately 2-6 a.m. trying to sell every consumer product imaginable. They usually employ fast-talking scientist-like pitchmen or minor celebrities as guests or hosts and their goal is to get you to buy (among many other things) home cleaning products, dietary supplements, memory improvement courses, real estate investment strategies, beauty supplies, baldness remedies, sexual enhancement supplements, weight-loss products, and especially exercise machines that look like they were once used in the torture chambers of the Spanish Inquisition.

Anyway, this past Saturday night, when all the old movies were either awful or ones I had seen before, I found myself watching segments of the following infomercials:

The one for a fancy motorized bed that you can't buy in any store that moves up and down and all over the place and looks like only a contortionist could survive sleeping on it; a vacuum cleaner that actually had hot steam pouring out of it; an exercise program for women called "Get Hot" that looked like it could easily kill a participant, although they all seemed to be smiling as they jumped around and threw punches into the air; one with "before and after" photos of people who had somehow lost tons of weight by just swallowing a pill; something called the "Shake Weight" that makes the user look like Daffy Duck has hit him or her with a big mallet and made their whole body vibrate; and my personal favorite, one where a bunch of very happy and chatty barefooted women are sitting on a couple of couches talking enthusiastically about a product called "No, No" which apparently zaps unwanted and unsightly body hair with hardly any effort and absolutely no pain.

"I've seen that one, too," a friend of mine said when I mentioned my night of infomercial viewing to him, "but I wonder why they're all sitting around barefooted?" "Maybe they have hairy toes?" I suggested. "Did you ever see that one that used to be on about a can of black hair dye that you could spray on the bald spot on the back of your head that made it seem like you had lots of hair back there? That actually looked like it worked."

"No," I said, "and I've always had a hard time looking at any of those infomercials that claim to help bald guys because my dad lost almost all of his hair by the time he 'Did you ever see that one that used to be on about a can of black hair dye that you could spray on the bald spot on the back of your head that made it seem like you had lots of hair back there?'

was 21 and I can still remember all the time and effort and expense he went through trying to find something that would help him."

"Yeah," said my friend, "I guess all those infomercials are rip-offs in one way or another, but I wonder why it is that once you start watching one of the darn things, it's really hard to turn it off?"

"I think there has to be something subliminal embedded in the darn things that make us watch even though we have absolutely no need for the product they're pushing. For instance, I once watched some goofy guy roast 15 different chickens in one of those 'just set it and forget it' rotisseries and I can't stand chicken cooked that way. In fact, other than the Jack Lalanne juice blender, which I actually almost bought one night, I think all those infomercials just prey on the fact that way too many people in this country are addicted to buying a bunch of crap they don't need."

"Well, you know what Lenin said about Americans, don't you?"

"What's that?" I asked.

"That we will end up selling our enemies the rope they'll use to hang us with."

"Well," I said, "just between you and me, I still kinda wish I had bought that Jack Lalanne juicer. It even came free with all his favorite recipes."

lots of attention from civil rights lawyers and concerned citizens. There is a deep concern by these lawyers and some citizens that the courts, the DA, and the police in this county are a little too cozy with each other, covering each others backs when needed and for getting who they are supposed to be working for.

Let's hope the appeals court will see through this charade and give these people back their right to live as free Americans, not prisoners in their own homes. If the courts do not protect us from overzealous police and officials, who will? We need that separation between these two branches of government to ensure that our rights are protected. Whatever is fueling this gang injunction, whether it be a scheme to clear the neighborhood for development, a racist attempt to denigrate and punish Mexicans or minorities, an overzealousness, fueled by delusional fear among law enforcement people, or what, it does not matter, we need the courts to protect us from such intrusions on our freedom. If they are allowed to lock these people in their homes for no good reason, why not you next? TIM MCKINNON

Pizza," a new restaurant featuring games, party rooms and, of course, food.

"Wicked" is an adjective — as in, "that pizza is wicked good." The proprietors boast that they use as much local and organic ingredients as possible. The business model is "since kids love pizza, shouldn't it be as healthy for them as possible?"

The owners of Wicked West Pizza are lifelong friends, Devon Grant of the Bay Area's Flavor Comfort Food and local attorney and engineer Michelle Van de Heetkamp. The holding company is BFF Ventures — a company named for their "Best Friend Forever" status. Devon is godfather to Michelle's children and her former volleyball coach.

Any soccer or little league parent has longed for a more spacious and entertaining local place for kids and their families. Wicked Pizza has party rooms, a game room and a more diverse menu also featuring barbeque, salads and "homemade" gelatos. It could be described as an upscale "Chucky Cheese," but Wicked Pizza also serves breakfasts and has a happy hour from Tuesdays to Thursdays.

Although West Sacramento lost one of its two

Round Table restaurants, the Wicked West owners describe their own business as growing.

With nine local pizza parlors, the competition for family dollars would seem to be formidable. Even more daunting is the considerable investment made by the owners; with initial capitalization of $200,000, the final costs of the new restaurant is closer to $900,000, say the owners.

When asked about their business plan, cash flow, break even or payback, the owners seem unconcerned and speak more about enlarging the menu. Delivery service is also planned. It is clear they are idea people and well disposed to the local community. They do feel that their prices are competitive given the portions and quality that they offer.

The owners were courted by Sacramento and Land Park as venues for their new restaurant, but West Sacramento was chosen. At their job fair, 320 people applied for these positions.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NOTES

The Sacramento river registered two feet seven inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. At the time this reading was taken the tide was out and is not a proper indication of the depth of the stream at this moment.

In tow of the steamer Red Bluff yesterday forenoon a large barge became stuck in a sandbar just north of the Southern Pacific bridge and remained lodged for several hours, even after strenuous efforts were made by the Sacramento Transportation Company to move the barge. Very few steamers are now able to navigate up river trips, and poke along very carefully, especially between the M street bridge and the mouth of the American river.

Fishing has been a dead letter in the Sacramento river for several weeks, only a few anglers who take pleasure in going after bass with hook and line.

The keel of another large barge was laid yesterday at the yards of the Sacramento Transportation Company at Washington. This is the fourth barge to be built by the corporation and measures 45 feet in width by 190 feet in length.

Last Monday evening were discharged by Judge Barry after complaint had been sworn against them by for disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Mildred Holmes and her little daughter have gone to Emigrant Gap to spend a few days in the mountains with Mr. Holmes, who is employed there at the present time.

After working for the Southern Pacific Company in the freight office for several years, Miss Sylva McDonald has accepted a position as bookkeeper with the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Professor Case is doing considerable renovation in the public school building in preparation for the opening of school. In some of the rooms an entire new coat of paint is being put on by the professor and a good deal of carpenter work will be done later to place things in shipshape before the opening of school.

Although many Washington young men went out after deer on the opening of the season on August 1st, there has been a veritable scarcity of venison around the town since that date. Many of the hunters came back heartbroken at the stories told by other hunters, who had to keep out of the way of the deer so as not to be run over. A dozen or so who had gone to Bartlett Mountain came back hungry. Herman Garber, El Garber and Ira Davis were fortunate enough in bagging one buck in Napa County, and since then have been crowing over their friends who came back empty handed.

A quiet wedding in Sacramento on August 2d united Frank Gabrielli, nineteen years, and Miss Julia D'Anis, twenty years. During a considerable period of time the young couple have been constant companions, so that friends were not at all surprised when the announcement of their marriage was made. Mrs. Gabrielli has been a very popular young lady in Washington since her girlhood. Temporarily they will make their home with the parents of the bride.

Friday morning the Forreth family with Mrs. Forreth, Sr., left here for a vacation trip to Santa Cruz, Los Angeles and points in Mexico. They expect to be gone for a month or more, taking in the various seaside resorts and will return over the Valley Route, via Bakersfield and Fresno.

B. Robbins, wife and children, accompanied by P. K. Graves and wife, left here last Sunday for Santa Cruz where they expect to spend about three weeks.

Last Wednesday Ben Moss was brought to the home of his mother here, after having been confined in a Sacramento hospital for several weeks. For a time after returning from Lake Tahoe his life was despaired of, but friends will be glad to learn that he is now rapidly improving.

A. J. Marty of the Monument Ranch with Lee O'Neil of the Sutter Basin left here last Monday for Reno, Lake Tahoe and other mountain resorts. They expect to be gone for a week or two, returning in time for the hop season.

Ed Van Olinda returned from spending several weeks at Brockway.

S. T. Rickard has returned from a camping trip in the Capay Valley.

The date of the opening of the Riverbank School for the fall term has been set by the trustees as September 11th. The following teachers have been selected: Miss Alyce Kingsbury, principal; Miss Loretta Johnson, Mrs. A. L. Case, Miss Adeline Wasterson. An election will be held August 14th for a special district tax to equip a new classroom in the school.

Mrs. G. Sobela and daughter Betty of Pleasanton were recent visitors in Bryte.

Mrs. Fred Moser spent the week-end in San Francisco.

NOYES HAS CLEAR FIELD FOR ASSEMBLYMAN HERE

Fred B. Noyes, candidate for the Assembly from the 8th district, which includes Yolo, Yuba and Sutter counties, seems to have open sailing for the position to which he aspires.

Although there are three candidates in the field, two of them seem to be depending on their reputations to elect them to office, while Fred Noyes is taking the trouble to go around asking for votes.

Noyes was in Washington, Freeport, Clarksburg, West Sacramento, Riverbank and the Netherlands District yesterday. He makes a splendid impression and, in addition, is blessed with the experience that should fit him to represent his constituency in first class style.

He was sheriff of Sutter county for sixteen years and under-sheriff for four years.

During the last legislative session he was clerk of four important committees, which gives him a thorough understanding of legislative matters. These committees which he served were Drainage, Swamp and Overflowed Lands, Corporations, Insurance and Mines and Mining.

Twenty-four years spent in Yuba City, where he has seen the orchard industry develop and grow to its present magnitude, have given Noyes a very thorough understanding of the problems of the horticulturist. This, together with his intimate knowledge of general farming, and his office experience as sheriff, will enable Noyes to serve his district in the Assembly in a competent and intelligent manner.

A man of wide acquaintance in Yolo, Yuba and Sutter counties, it is the belief of Noyes that the election returns on August 29 will be ample to give him the nomination from this district.

A FLOCK OF POLITICIANS VERY BUSY NOW

Yesterday was field day for the politicians looking for office in Yolo County, for not less than twenty were around town at all hours of the day.

It is funny to watch these men come once every four years to Washington and then expect the voters of this district to render them favors even without asking. Such is the case, however, and a sad case, too, to which this paper has drawn attention on more than one occasion.

Very true, some of the office-seekers are genial and sociable and drop in once in a while to say "howdy." Yesterday the following were passing out cards around the post office, the barber shop, the meat market, the grocery store, the blacksmith shop, and other similar places: Roy Cole, J. Brannigan, R. G. Lawson, Lee R. Pierce, Fred Noyes, J. W. Monroe, and a few others.

SUPERVISORS PLANING SUBWAY

Woodland, Aug. 10.—At the last meeting of the Board of Supervisors, Russell, Edson and Leinberger, with County Surveyor Proctor, were appointed a committee to confer with the officials of the Sacramento and San Francisco railroads at an early date.

The matter to be attended to is the proposed subway where the railroad and county road meet at what is known as the Riverview crossing. A subway is very badly needed at this point, for the crossing as it is now is very dangerous to traffic.

Mrs. Parkinson is now in San Francisco to attend the State Grand Council of the Order of Pocahontas.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brash, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Carlson, Mrs. A. A. Davidsonville and daughter Helen, Mrs. Frank De Riso and Miss Marguerite Brash were members of a picnic party Sunday at Mormon Island.

Miss Nola Scott has gone to a Woodland hospital for treatment.

Wreckers are removing the T. C. Snyder home, destroyed last week by fire, and work will begin soon on rebuilding the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Du Four and son returned to Vallejo after a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lee. They were accompanied back to Vallejo by Mrs. Kate Todhunter, who will go on to San Francisco for the State Grand Council of the Order of Pocahontas.

NO HUNTING!

This is to notify the public that the California Fish and Game Commission has liberated herds of elk on our cattle range in Yolo, Lake and Colusa Counties. This range commences approximately four miles west of Rumsey, near and including the Ray House Range, extending up and including Cache Creek six miles, thence in a northeasterly direction, crossing Bear Creek approximately eight miles above the junction of Cache and Bear Creeks and bounded on the east by Cortana Mountain and including that part of the range formerly owned by the Stovall-Wilcoxson Company, called the "Hamilton Place," which is the northern boundary.

Any one found hunting on these premises will be prosecuted according to law.

CARELESS HANDLING OF SHOTGUN BROUGHT DEATH

George E. Pratt, sixteen years and six months of age, died yesterday afternoon in the Krull Hospital in Sacramento following a gunshot wound in his back, inflicted through the careless handling of a loaded shotgun.

About 2 p. m., young Pratt with Jed Lee and Francis McTeer out hunting in the Reed orchard near Riverbank, were resting under a tree. It seems that Pratt wanted to move to another place and started to do so. He dragged his gun behind him and in some manner it was discharged, the charge of buckshot entering his back just below his ribs and remaining in the intestines.

An hour and a half after the accidental shot the young man passed away at the Krull Hospital in Sacramento where he was taken. Young Pratt had been warned about his carelessness in handling the loaded weapon by one of the farmhands on the Reed orchard, but he paid no attention to it.

Melvin C. Pratt, father of the boy, was notified immediately and had his son taken to the hospital. Pratt, Sr., is bus driver in Sacramento for the Travelers Hotel, the Land Hotel and the Sacramento Hotel.

An inquest will be held tonight by Coroner Skelton, the remains being at the undertaking parlors of Henry P. Ryan.

Funeral arrangements have not been made. The boy's mother is dead, but besides his father he leaves three brothers, Everal, Edward and Frank, and one sister, Bessie Pratt.

BABY'S DEATH CAUSED BY ARSENIC POISONING

Last Friday afternoon five-year-old Helen Almasoff of Riverbank was poisoned by eating pills found in a bottle that the child picked up in the automobile of a friend who had visited the family.

The pills being sugar-coated, tasted good to the child but they caused her death an hour after eating them.

A coroner's inquest held by Coroner Wilson rendered a verdict accordingly.

The funeral of the baby was held on Saturday, interment being in St. Joseph's cemetery.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

ADMINISTER ESTATE OF
YVONNE RENSTROM
CASE NUMBER PB11-48

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of YVONNE RENSTROM:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Lucienne Sindell-Turquet in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that Carolyn M. Young be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: May 4, 2011, at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 15, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.
